Consultation: the Mayor's vision for a Diverse and Inclusive city

For generations, London has been a shining example of how people from different countries, cultures and backgrounds can live side-by-side and work together. We must continue to build strong, connected communities and ensure that every Londoner can share in the prosperity of our city.

To achieve this, Mayor Sadiq Khan has published his Diversity and Inclusion Vision. It sets out the future of London as a diverse, inclusive and integrated city and a great place to:

- live and grow up
- work and do business
- feel safe and be healthy
- get around, travel and enjoy

Have your say

The Mayor wants to hear from individuals and organisations that can help him and the GLA group make London a more inclusive city.

If you are an:

- individual - take part in our Talk London discussion board
- organisation - respond to our questionnaire with evidence and ideas

And if you require this vision in a different format please contact diversitystrategy@london.gov.uk

Consultation closes 11th September 2017
